

A good place to find a helping hand is at the end of your arm:

Describe a situation professionally or personally when you or somebody know successfully changed their perspective to deal with a difficult situation:

What were the details?

Is there a roadblock you are currently dealing with professionally or personally that with a different approach (looking “at the end of your arm”) might help?
