

It is amazing how much can be accomplished if no one is concerned who gets the credit.

Describe a person professionally or personally who you were coached or supervised by who had no interest in taking credit when things went well and always took on the blame when they didn't:

---

---

---

Give the details of an example:

---

---

---

How did that person's approach affect you and the team?

---

---

---