

The main ingredient of stardom is the rest of the team

Describe a person you know or have known who is an important but unrecognized member of a team you are or have been involved in.

How could that person have been better recognized for their contribution?

What impact would proper recognition for this person's contribution have on the team?
