

If you always tell the truth, you will not have to remember what you said.

Describe a person you know or have known who always tells the truth.

How does that person's integrity affect your relationship?

Could you improve in this regard or are there some situations where you are not comfortable being completely honest? What are they? What could you do to improve in this regard?
