

Forget the favors you have given--remember those received.

Describe a person you know or have known who has helped you on many occasion to the person you about how they helped you.
but never reminds you about now they helped you.
How does that make you feel about that person and about yourself?
a this an area you could improve on?
s this an area you could improve on?