

It is one of the most beautiful compensations of this life that no man can sincerely help another without helping himself.

Describe a person you know or have known who seems very happy although they are not primarily focused on gaining more material possessions for themselves?

How would you describe the motivation for their daily activities aside from those connected to their basic survival?

Is there a perspective or lesson to be learned from this observation you could apply for yourself ?
