

Those who have never suffered adversity, never experience the true meaning of success.

What does this statement mean to you?
Give an example of somebody you know or read about who suffered adversity and experienced the true meaning of success.	I then
How does this perspective affect how you view adversity?	