

Establishing Roles (and making sure each person knows theirs is important)

What does this statement mean to you?

Describe a person you know or have known who let you know your role is important. What impact did this have on your attitude?

Is there somebody you know who you could do a better job of letting them know their role is important?
