

“There are educated fools and uneducated people who are wise.”

What does the phrase: “There are educated fools and uneducated people who are wise.” mean to you?

What if any do you think is the value of this idea: “Making a judgment about another person’s intelligence based on their race, gender, job title, economic level, or age is not wise.”

If you believe this idea has value, how could you apply it at work? Please be specific.
