

Honors are very fleeting, just as fame is; cherish friendship more.

What does this statement mean to you?

Describe a person you know who abides by this approach. What impact does that have the happiness level of that person?

Who would you share this idea with and how would you advise that person to apply it?
